FOREWORD

The Winchester hike . . . A. A. dances . . . the Dramatic Club play . . . the girls' basketball tournament . . . the rush to the lunch room . . . air raid drills . . . the senior prom! Perhaps in the difficult days to come this Yearbook will help you to recall these things and many others typical of Stoneham High School in 1943. If these memories inspire you to fight harder in order that future classes may enjoy school days in a world at peace, then it will be a Yearbook worthy of its name.

DEDICATION

To the gallant, unselfish defenders of freedom, just yesterday our classmates and today our friends in arms, we hopefully and proudly dedicate this Year-book. May the unfailing determination of purpose and remarkable resourcefulness they have shown in their years at Stoneham High School, make their service under the flag of this great democracy, The United States of America, as praiseworthy and deserving of credit as their activities at our school.

PRINCIPAL

We pay tribute to our principal, Mr. Howard W. Watson, for his kind understanding and unusual wisdom. Often has he spurred us to greater goals by a softly spoken word or by a friendly smile. Unceasingly has he given time and effort to build our confidence and to keep forever pleasant and worthwhile our recollections of Stoneham High School. As we leave our classes, we shall carry with us the memory of a courteous adviser, a faithful friend.

ALLAN ALWARD

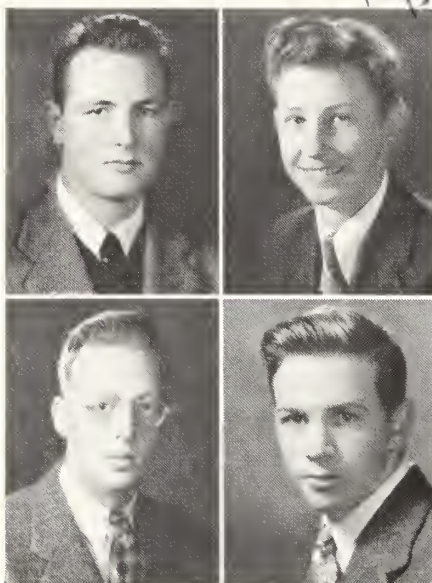

Fiery red hair is only part of what makes Al so well-liked. His ever present sense of humor and agreeable disposition makes up the rest. We shall always remember him as outstanding in both hockey and football.

Hockey, 1, 2, 3; Football, 1, 3; Blue and White, 1, 2, 3; Winter Carnival, 1, 2, 3; Dramatic Club, 1, 2, 3; Play, 2; Vice President of Dramatic Club 3; Usher at Graduation.

DONALD L. ANDERSON

This big blonde boy of C2 has struggled all year trying to prove that some trig problems just can't be done. Maybe he has something there.

Basketball, 2; Soccer, 1; Blue and White, 1.

ROBERT BIGGIO

Pep and a jolly disposition make up for Bob's small stature. We wonder how so much fun can be wrapped up in one person!

Hockey, 2 3; Football, 2; Yearbook Staff.

Dick can be seen any Saturday driving his beach wagon on his famous egg route. His love for flashy clothes and his gay smile have made him one of the best liked fellows in the class.

Football, 2; Blue and White, 2, 3; Usher at Graduation.

RAYMOND W. ANDERSON

Strictly "hep" and "on the beam" Ray is one of the most versatile, up-and-coming males of the class. The first of C1 to enter the service, we know that if Uncle Sam likes him as well as we do, he'll be an admiral in no time.

Basketball, 1, 2, 3; Field Hockey, 1, 2; Blue and White, 1, 2, 3; Vice President of Dramatic Club, 2; Marshal at Graduation.

SHIRLEY J. BLOOD

WESLEY L. BROWN

Wes is the fellow who knows his math, history, English, and science. In other words, he's the brains of 12 G. He has proved himself a good fighter as well as a scholar. Include a little shyness and you have Wesley Brown of the U. S. Navy.

Baseball, 1, 2; Blue and White, 2, 3; Winter Carnival, 2, 3; U. S. Navy.

BARBARA COLE

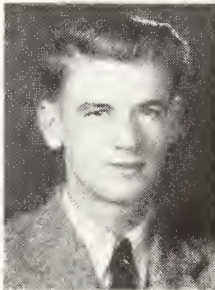

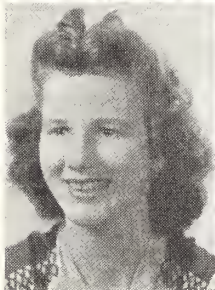

Barb is the girl who is seen but not heard. She is a real scholar as well as a good friend. Barb has already started on her business career.

Honor Roll, 1, 2, 3; Four Year Honor Group.

MURIEL F. BUCKLE

Muriel has displayed her talents many times in singing and playing the western songs of which she is a lover. She is one of our gayest cheerleaders. One of Muriel's dreams will be realized when she finds her new home in Texas.

Traffic Squad, 3; Blue and White, 3; Cheerleaders, 3; Four Year Honor Group.

SALVATORE COSTA

Sal Costa comes in like a lion and goes out like a lamb. He really is a gentle creature, but would have us think he lives on a diet of razor blades, milk bottles, and nails. Sal's main interests lie in dates, dramatics, and playing dumb; but we all know he has plenty of personality.

Blue and White Club, 2, 3; Dramatic Club, 1, 2, 3; Treasurer of Dramatic Club, 3; Yearbook Staff; Class Prophecy.

GLORIA DAVIDSON

This girl who came to us this year from Shrewsbury brought with her, determination, trustworthiness and sweetness. Her ambition is to be a nurse.

WELCOME

Francis Howard

Tonight it becomes my pleasure to welcome all of you, friends of the graduates, to our exercises. I welcome you not only in behalf of the classmates present, but also in behalf of those honored classmates now in the service of our country. Though we miss these friends who are already in the Army, Navy, Marines and Air Corps, and wish they were here, we feel that they are with us in spirit for this important day.

War has made us more conscious than ever of sacrifice and has given us a better evaluation of all things. What day could be more appropriate than this one, therefore, on which to thank our parents publicly for the many sacrifices they have made during these past years to make this graduation day possible for us? Always we have felt the need of their sympathy, understanding, and wisdom; now we acknowledge it and pay tribute to it. Throughout our school years, others too have sacrificed time and effort to prepare us for the future. Let us give proper praise to our faculty for their untiring efforts, and to the school committee for their wise provision for our welfare.

Just as we are conscious of the pleasant days now behind us, so are we conscious of the responsibilities ahead. Some of us will be furthering our education in institutions of higher learnings; others will be entering the service almost immediately. No other class has been faced with such an unpredictable future. In any case we shall go forth into our new places hoping to put an end to this period of strife. We have a two fold duty to accomplish: first, to fight for the restoration of peace in the world; second, to make the post-war world one of which we shall be proud. This will call for vision and unceasing fortitude. May we, with the help of God, be ready for the years before us in all things and at all times.

THAT FREEDOM MAY SURVIVE

When George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, and Abraham Lincoln died, they left to their relatives and to all Americans an inheritance, not of money, not of industry, but of the right to freedom.

History has recorded the early growth of that inheritance. One of the earliest demands for freedom made by English-speaking people was the Magna Charta. In this, these fundamental rights of free men, were expressed; the right to freedom of religion, the right to trial by jury, and the right to be taxed only as the needs of the Government required, and then only with the consent of the people.

For about four hundred years, the Kings of England respected this document until certain of them desired an established church. Although the majority of the people willingly ascribed to this faith, a small band of them were persecuted for their different views on religion. Some of them left England, first for Holland, then for America. Before they landed in 1620, the Pilgrims drew up in the "Mayflower Compact" what was probably the first statement of rights in America. In it, the right of assembly, the right to free speech, and the right to make and to execute their own laws were guaranteed. Strangely enough, the very thing they desired most was not included, the right to worship as they pleased.

Not all those interested in freedom left England with the Pilgrims. Others made their demands in the form of a revolution which resulted in a renewal of the terms of the Magna Charta, in a set of laws known as the "Bill of Rights."

The rivalry among the countries of England, France, and Spain for control and power in America led to conquest and settlement. The opportunity for free enterprise this country offered, as opposed to the oppression of the English, bred in the colonists a desire for independence. This grew until in June, 1776, it was decided that "we are and of right ought to be free and independent states."

It was only one month later that Thomas Jefferson at the request of the Second Continental Congress, drew up the "Declaration of Independence." It stated that: "All men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. That to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed; that when any form of government becomes destructive to these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or abolish it . . . Prudence, indeed, will dictate that governments long established should not be abolished for light and transient causes."

After a hard fight our forefathers won their independence, and a new government was launched. In 1787, the United States Constitution was drawn up, but the states refused to ratify it until a series of amendments known as the "Bill of Rights" was added. These guaranteed the personal freedoms all men require: the freedom of speech, press, assembly and religion. So in 1787, the Constitution officially became the law of the land.

In 1861, the union was torn and all it stood for threatened by a great civil war. After one of the worst battles, that of Gettysburg, termed by most historians as the turning point of the war. Lincoln reiterated the fact that "all men are created equal." Forceful indeed are his words "that we here dedicate our lives that this nation of the people, by the people and for the people shall not perish from the earth." Lincoln's view of justice and equality extended not only to America, but to all the people of the world. At the close of the Civil War the Northern interpretation of American principles triumphed, the Southern states lost their right to secede, but gained the protection of a united nation, and the Negroes were released from bondage.

In 1898, the people of America discovered that it would be necessary to interfere with European affairs to protect their interests and the freedom of the world. We fought the Spanish-American war to free Cuba, our first southeastern neighbor, of her oppressor. So, you see, we began near home to impress upon the world our desire to make freedom for all people a reality.

Our next interference with European affairs came in the Great War, the war to end all wars, the war to make the world safe for democracy, the war to insure freedom for all people. The Allies won this war after four years of bitter fighting.

Under Wilson's fourteen points, we had a good opportunity to preserve world peace. However, there was lacking a "will to peace" among the larger countries, and the League of Nations had not the power to force aggressors to submit to lawful settlement of disputes. Undoubtedly, had the United States been willing to cooperate, the League might have grown in power to be much more effective. As it was, all the larger powers considered their own interests first, and cooperation was consistent only among the smaller nations.

This is the history of our inheritance of freedom and our fight to preserve it from the Magna Charta to our Declaration of Independence and through the first World War. Now, while we are engaged in the Second World War, is the time to plan for a just and lasting peace.

It is too soon to make a final blueprint for a world organization because we cannot tell the extent of power with which nations will emerge from the war. However, it is not too soon to consider the fundamental principles to which we will have to hold if there is to be a cessation of armed conflict over a period of years to allow a concept of world cooperation to develop. What concessions and compromises must be accepted cannot be determined as yet. Although we must, as realists, realize we cannot possibly achieve all our ideals at once, the clear statement of the principles for which we are fighting will give direction to our diplomacy.

Some of our war aims, as given by President Roosevelt and Winston Churchill in the Atlantic Charter are that people will be given the opportunity of choosing the type of government they want; all nations will be given the right to free trade and freedom of the seas.

To these aims were added by Roosevelt in his Four Freedoms address to Congress that the four freedoms we will grant to all people are freedom of press and speech, and freedom from want and fear. To do our best to fulfill these aims, there are certain facts we must recognize. The first of these is that we cannot have both peace and revenge. The defeated countries should be punished, but the way to punish them is by making them help to rebuild that which they have destroyed and thereby help the conquered nations to get back on their feet.

The next fact to be recognized is that we must foster in the people of the world a "will to peace" so that we will not fail again as we did in 1918. To do this, war must be stripped of all glory. The horrors of this one should leave no illusions in the minds of anyone, old or young. The causes of war should be carefully analyzed, and the psychological and economic factors acknowledged and met.

To guard against a peace treaty written in revenge, we must allow for a cooling-off period of from ten to twenty years after the close of the war. During this time men whose knowledge, training, and sympathies fit them for their special tasks, should be in constant conference, working out the problems that arise among nations.

We must realize that there can be no superior race, color, or creed. We must also be brought to recognize that the welfare of every individual person and nation depends upon the welfare of all the world. A threat to the freedom of one country is a threat to the freedom of all. To firmly establish peace, we must uproot all traces of prejudice toward races and nations by recognizing the best qualities of all cultures and creeds. All nations differ in language and customs, but we must plan a cooperative peace despite these differences. The world would be a dull place if all the people in it were of one mind. Much of the color and joy of living comes from the folkways of the different countries. The self-interest of nations must be balanced by pride in the contribution each can make to the ultimate welfare of all.

Holding government positions, local or national, must be considered an honor and a noble service to a country. From each nation should be selected youth of high intelligence, of excellent character and of sound judgment to be trained for diplomatic service. They should be educated at public expense at home and abroad until they are well grounded in the history, language and culture of the country to which they will be sent.

By an unbiased treatment of the history of all nations, we must aim to heal the wounds international strife has caused. After the last war, representatives of the Weimar Republic of Germany suggested to the League of Nations that an International Commission be formed for the editing of textbooks of nations to promote fairness, sympathy, and understanding; but desire for revenge blinded leaders to the wisdom of the suggestion.

Man has been so impressed by his achievements in the sciences that he has come to worship his own creation. The chaos we suffer is the fulfillment of the pagan faith of the world. We need to hold fast to the truth of the Psalmist, "The earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof," that we may fulfill well our sacred trust in using its national resources.

That freedom may survive, we, the graduating class of 1943, do, in the words of Jefferson, "with a firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence, mutually pledge to each other our lives, our fortunes, and our sacred honor."

HISTORY

by Shirley Moore
illustrated by Muriel Goudey

June 18, 1943, and we're alumni! How strange it will be to be cut off from all the familiar activities of school life with which we have been so busy for four long years. How hard it is to think of leaving the many friends we have made and the niches we have cut for ourselves in our own little worlds. This graduation marks an end to the carefree years we have spent, working, playing and preparing ourselves for higher goals. To some of us it means the beginning of a completely new life in the business world, and to others the entering of fields of higher education. That, however, is future history; so let us look at the past and see what we remember.

1939 - 1940

Didn't we feel grown up in the ninth grade? Do you remember how we felt at our first dances—so sweet and shy, with the pretty little girls on one side of the gym and the bashful boys on the other? But the shyness suddenly and miraculously was overcome when the refreshments were served. These dances marked the beginning of our social careers.

In "What a Life," the dramatic club play, we saw ourselves as others see us and laughed at what we discovered. Our class was highly honored when Miss King selected among the stars for her A. A. show, "New Town Hall Tonight," some of our leading thespians: Beverly Mahn, Esther Morrison, Shirley Ringland, and the Dempsey sisters, who portrayed the "Old Maids." The fact that this was put on in the new auditorium was a thrill in itself.

1940 - 1941

In our sophomore year, we joined with vigor many high school activities. Our football team had bad breaks that year, the worst being the blizzard just before our Thanksgiving Day game. But the players, with plenty of school spirit, pitched in and worked until late at night shoveling snow from the field. Using the snowbanks as bleachers, the fans in lusty cheers really showed their appreciation for our boys.

"Smiling Thru" a very well-known drama, was presented that year to the appreciation of all who saw it. It was a beautiful play and was put on with such an enthusiastic spirit that it was a great success. To our great regret that it was her last, Miss King presented the A.A. show at the Town Hall. I'm sure none of us will ever forget the beautiful ballet that was executed—and I really mean executed—by our dazzling “Football Follies.” That show was the funniest I had ever seen; many of you will agree with me.

With the help of “Doc’s” Blue and White Club, the whole high school made history by reviving the winter carnival. The sport program was complete to the last prize and the weather was perfect. To climax the excitement of the day, we had a carnival ball at which, with the proper ceremony, the King and Queen were crowned.

About the last of April and May, strange sounds began to float in and about the old Assembly Hall, and in spite of closed doors and lessons to do, we could not ignore such glorious warblings. So, with Mr. Davis interpreting, we spent many enjoyable periods of music appreciation.

Now we were juniors and how important we felt! We were upper classmen and we reveled in the glory of it. Weren’t we proud of our orchestra that year when, capably directed by our popular Mr. Tapley, it gave its first big concert at the Town Hall? It was gratifying to hear a high school orchestra play so well. Everybody said it was the best amateur concert he had ever heard, and we heartily agreed.

“Captain Applejack,” a swashbuckling pirate story with a bloody plot, was the Dramatic Club’s presentation at that time. Many members of our class took part in it and had a wonderful time.

Our whole football season was made bright by the victorious Thanksgiving Day game at Reading. Although we were the underdog, the Reading team could not hold its own and we won by one touchdown. The thrills and high spirits lasted throughout the triumphant night and we paraded through the streets, serenading the coaches and amusing motorists in the square with a real snake dance.

Again we made a success of winter carnival and after everyone had recovered from the strenuous races of the carnival itself, the coronation ball took place in the Town Hall. With an impressive and colorful ceremony, our Carnival King and Queen were crowned, after which the Royal Dancers entertained the imperial couple with a graceful rendition of the “Skaters’ Waltz.” Bill Conley, who really looked the part of jester with colors, bells and all, was amazing.

The girls' Basketball Tournament! We just couldn't forget that! We surely felt proud of ourselves when we won from both sophomores and seniors. That was an almost unheard-of happening and we were as excited as we could be. The old town rang with celebration all night.

After many weeks of teaching, Mr. Miller decided that his work had been to no avail when the silence of one laboratory period was broken by an innocently stated question, "Mr. Miller, where can I get a beakerful of air?" Maybe the Shadow would know.

When the class elections were over, we found that Francis Howard had succeeded Bill Conley as president. Francis, one of our most popular boys, deserved the honor and also the congratulations he received.

Our junior year was coming to an end and how excited we were at the prospect of becoming seniors in a few days. This time we took part in the graduation of the Class of 1942. Remember how lovely Gloria Baxter looked and how very poised Ray Anderson was as they served as our marshals? When the diplomas were awarded, we became seniors and entered the last year of our high school life.

Weren't we busy at the first of this year? Dances were held almost every Friday which were well patronized by the members of our class.

On the top of the list of athletic activities was the Winchester hike. Like a well-organized parade, we marched over to the field, with spirits and hopes as high as the stars. Our team played a marvelous game, and had it not been for a lucky—or rather unlucky—touchdown by the other side, we would have been on top of the world. Of course, the disappointment was acute, but we took it with grace and resolved to "do or die" next year.

He had another shoveling-fest for our winter carnival. Although everything was covered with wet snow, the rink was sufficiently cleared by the S. H. S. students so that we could play hockey on it. And we did, beating the mighty B.C. Freshmen 7-0. We were again disappointed because we could not have a carnival ball and many were the precious dreams of being carnival Queen that faded from view. But our hockey team played a good season. Captained by Harold Downs, we won third place in the league, and so were a credit to "Doc" Gordon.

"The Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court was presented by the Dramatic Club, starring Muriel Coudey, Priscilla Rockwell, Patricia Miller, Rozelle Graham, Jane Borthwick, Herbert Hunt and Arthur Bridgman, excellently supported by many juniors and sophomores. It was acclaimed by all as an almost professional performance.

This year's basketball tournament was practically an exact counterpart of last year's as far as games are concerned. There was a freshness in the original costumes and routines of the junior and senior classes that made quite an impression upon the audience. The games were thrilling from start to finish and because the junior teams played so well, we should not begrudge them the victory. After all, didn't we beat the seniors last year?

There were quite a number of boys and girls who received letters at our spring assembly. Everyone knew that now he was helping the war effort in keeping himself well by physical education. Our sports are now a vital part of the school program.

We hoisted the service flag this year as many of our older boys have left for service or early semesters of college. The spirit of our class is well represented by these boys and we're proud of them!

When the class honors were announced, we found that Shirley Blood and Kirtland McCaleb had been awarded the MacDonald medals and that Richard Storey was to give the class address. Those honored were properly congratulated and everyone was pleased.

Then came the senior prom bringing to a high point our social life, followed by the actual climax, the class banquet, cementing together in one final union our class fellowship.

At last the night of nights came, and with pride in our achievements, but with wonder in our hearts because of the uncertain future, we received our diplomas, and resolutely faced our new experiences.

POETRY

ALMA MATER

Hail to thee, dear Stoneham,
Our voices now we raise,
So let us join together
And all thy virtues praise.

Our hearts are in thy keeping;
Thine honor we'll uphold,
To help each one the other
Till fate our lives enfold.

So sing of Alma Mater,
A toast to Blue and White,
A pledge to thee, dear Stoneham,
Always to fight for right.

Kathleen and John English

REMEMBERING

We say goodbye, remembering
All the beautiful things
Like ivy glistening in the sun,
Voices raised in joy and anger,
The fiery energy of youth,
And joy of competition,
Sparkling eyes,
The endless shuffle of directed feet,
And echoing laughter,
The shivering squeak of chalk,
And books, timeworn,
Interrupted music from a broken pencil,
Raindrops pleading to come in,
The slow, dull click of time
And dreamy faces—waiting.

Dear Librarian,

Enclosed is the SHS 1943 Yearbook I promised during a visit to the library a few weeks ago.

At that time I was asking if any one Class of '43 was working on a plan for our 50th year in '93. I also stopped at the high school. The secretary there suggested that I write the school and perhaps we could get something started.

If you by any chance know of any '43 graduates I would like to contact them, so please let me know.

FIELD HOCKEY

We had an exciting field hockey season this year and an excellent team, in which all three senior high classes were well represented. To our credit are two victories, Reading and Wakefield, 3-0 and 5-0 respectively; one tie game, Winchester 2-2; and one loss to our traditional rival, Melrose, 3-1. The Melrose game was by far the most exciting for two reasons: it was our hardest game, and it came at the end of the season. Here's cheering for next year's team and a most successful season.

CHEER LEADERS

These versatile young ladies are really something to be proud of—and believe us, we are proud of them! They have done wonderful work this year cheering our teams when we were winning or losing. Their constant encouragement was always welcome and helpful to all the players. We think they are tops, for they are pretty, vivacious, and spirited.

BASKETBALL

Basketball this year was fast and strenuous. The blue and white teams played their games with skill, speed, and an enjoyable spirit of comradeship. The followers of this exciting sport played themselves to rags each Tuesday, Wednesday, and Friday afternoon with no audience except their fellow players. The heart-warming manner in which the fighting teams truthfully praised each other gave our games a pleasantly gay spirit. The climax of the season was, of course, the great tournament. This year, the capacity of the hall being limited, attendance fell a bit from last year's; but the spirit was the same. The games were hard and fast. The cheering was practically continuous. The Juniors won this year as last. Everyone was happy and almost all celebrated the night at the Spa or Twins in a very festive mood.

FOOTBALL

Despite a comparatively light backfield, Coach "Bill" Miller, assisted by "Doc" Gordon, steered his Stoneham lads through a favorable football season with four victories, two losses, and two ties. Highlight of the year came in the contest with Winchester High. On this occasion the student body trekked en masse to the game and had much praise heaped on them by Boston newspapers for their patriotism and spirit. The Blue and White, pre-game underdog, outplayed and outfought the highly touted Winchester eleven, losing in but the last thirty seconds of play, 12-10. While the loss dampened the team's spirit momentarily, several local experts lauded the boys lavishly and maintained that this thriller had been the best of school-boy football for several years.

HOCKEY

"Doc" Gordon's boys, with but a few experienced members from the previous season finished third in the swift-skating Greater Boston Interscholastic Hockey League. The Stoneham sextet lacked luck as shown by scores in Medford, 3-4, and Arlington, 1-2, contests; but with spirit they thrilled many a spectator and won more games than any other team in the circuit. As usual, they maintained their annual superiority over Newton, Belmont, and Cambridge Latin. In addition to their official season the locals were included in a playoff series between the Greater Boston and Bay State Leagues; but lost to undefeated Framingham, occupant of second place in the latter circuit, by a score of 2-0. All in all, the Stoneham boys carried their banner high throughout the season.

BASKETBALL

This season Mr. Buono inherited and capably coached the basketball team. Without the services of their star goal-getter, "Dick" Jenkins, who was claimed by the U.S. Navy, the Stoneham basketeters sported a record of two victories and eight losses. Although on the losing end of several contests, each was the type in which the winning points could have gone to either team. As in football, Winchester High gave the quintet their toughest battle. Only in the dying second of the game did the S.H.S. "pull the game out of the fire" by a score of 21-20. So despite the number of losses, the hoopsters gave their every last bit of fight to the sport.

BLUE AND WHITE CLUB

Under the able guidance of "Doc" Gordon, the Blue and White Club carried on this year despite many obstacles. None of us will ever forget the great school spirit that was behind the memorable hike to Winchester and the glorious march home again with tears in our eyes, prouder of our football boys than if we had won the game. We are equally proud of our Winter Carnival sports program. The undaunted spirit of the Blue and White was again shown when everyone donned snow togs and shoveled for two days to clear the hockey rink of snow. Although we could not hold our Carnival Ball, the way our hockey boys played and defeated the Boston College freshmen made up for the disappointment. Everyone turned out to see the victory; and the Carnival was proclaimed completely successful when we reached our goal and made enough money to continue the one hundred dollar scholarship awarded to a worthy senior each year by the Blue and White Club.

BASEBALL

Hit hard by the losses of such talented and experienced seniors as Marty Jordan, Wes Brown, John Knight and Shel Cram, the Stoneham High School baseball nine included only three seniors—Art Bridgman, Al Minghella, and Joe Connors. Several major positions were open to inexperienced juniors and sophomores. Art Donaghey, Bud Dill, Frank Martin, and Harry Lynch seemed to be capable fielders, while Ralph Truesdale had the job of filling John Knight's first base position. A clever little pitcher was John Coffin; and a smart catcher, Pat Minghella, was close second to Joe Connors.

DRAMATIC CLUB

"All the world's a stage," and we of the Dramatic Club are learning to play our parts upon it. Our production of "The Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court" this year won much acclaim with Brud Bridgman in the leading role, and Rozelle Graham as the scheming Morgan LeFay. Muriel Goudey, Priscilla Rockwell, Patricia Morrell, Richard Hayden, Patricia Miller, Jane Borthwick, Robert MacLean and Robert Towse were good players too in this gay drama. Our new adviser is Mr. Willard R. Higgins. We wish Barbara Dempsey, our president, every success in her future dramatic career.

ORCHESTRA

This year our high school orchestra has enjoyed again the leadership of our conductor, Mr. Rolland Tapley, a member of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Last fall the orchestra had two public performances: the first, at the Stoneham League of Peace Action meeting; and the second, at the Teachers' Club. The Spring Concert showed the good work the orchestra members had been doing during the winter months. We are indebted to Mr. Tapley for the love of good music he has inspired.

TO THE SENIORS

The fellow who tries to do something and fails, is infinitely better off than the one who tried to do nothing and succeeds. The greatest mistake we can make in life is to be continuously fearing we will make one.

WHAT'S COOKING? For one thing, their mothers stepping it off like the Three Musketeers—toting their own parcels, of all things! Just to save rubber for 'em. And would you imagine Lulu Belle taking highest honors in a First Aid Class? Or Mrs. Berwyn teaching a Nutrition Class? And everyone going in for Victory Gardens to make sure they'll get their three squares a day when they start their tour of Europe? Too bad about fuel's being so tight—but leave it to that gang back home. Why, you wouldn't know 'em! They're terrific!
